Avalanche Heating Up

Alaska rides five-game winning streak into February

It might be the dead of winter, but few teams are hotter right now than the Alaska Avalanche, which has rolled off five wins in a row, including two last weekend against the Wichita Falls Wildcats.

"Those were important points for us," said Avalanche coach Dave Boitz, whose team improved to 16-18-1 on the season. "And to get them against a big, strong team from the South Division is a big confidence-booster for our young team."

Logan Rounds (game-winner), Thomas Erlacher and Robb Haider each rang up a goal and an assist as the Avs opened with a 5-3 victory on Friday. Along with turning aside 31 shots, goaltender Nate Pellegrino added two assists in the win.

Nate Pellegrino added two assists in the win. The next night, Sean McNeely, Dan Hildbrandt (game-winner) and Haider connected for goals as

Robb Haider

Alaska dropped the Wildcats, 3-1. Pellegrino made 36 saves to pick up his second win of the weekend.

The victories also helped vault the Avalanche back into the race for second place in the West Division with Wenatchee - Alaska sits three points behind the Wild having played one more game - while distancing itself from Kenai River, which has five fewer points than Alaska having played four more games.

"Our special teams are much improved and we have a balanced attack where we're consistently rolling four lines," said Boitz, whose team went 7-3 in January. "We've also been getting better goaltending than the weeks leading up to the (holiday) break."

And the Avs have Pellegrino to thank. With his two wins last weekend, the 20-year-old from Woodlyn, Pa., who started his NAHL career with Alaska back in 2006-07 has now won his last four starts.

"He has the ability to be as good as anyone, and he's working on being prepared mentally everyday in practice and in games," said Boitz. "If he stays consistent, he could be one of the top goalies in the league. He knows that, so the ball is in his court."

Haider has also come around to become a big piece of the Avs' puzzle. A highly regarded first-year forward who hit some bumps in the road early on, the Anchorage product has risen to the challenge, posting four goals and three assists in his last four games.

"He's responded like a champ," said Boitz, who also credits Haider's linemates, Rounds and Justin Giles. "He's better in all areas of the ice than I would've ever imagined and now he's becoming one of the biggest offensive threats we have.

"We've had different guys get hot at different times and right now, although we don't have that one guy who's going to carry us offensively, we have a number of guys who can score at any time."

On the defensive side of the puck, McNeely, from Minnesota, and Jason Cohen, from Anchorage, have drawn rave reviews.
